ONLY ONE MAN ESCAPED

STORY OF THE SURVIVOR OF A LOST STEAMER.

More Than a Score of Persons Perished With the Dean Bichmond-Tale of Terrible Suffering-Other Storm News.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 16 .- Only one man escaped from the lost steamer Dean Richmond. He was found on the beach pear Van Buren Point to-day. His haggard face and sunken eyes told a story of terrible suffering. He was aimlessly wandering up and down the beach and when spoken to burst into tears and said he was looking for his BUOYS DAMAGED BY THE STORM. Recommendation to Congress to Erect Sailors' Monument.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16 .- Lieutenant-Commander McKenzie, in charge of 'the light-house service in the sixth district, reports to the Light-house Board that nearly all the buoys along the At-lantic coast extending from New river inlet, N. C., to Jupiter inlet, Fia., were damaged or displaced during the recent storms. No reliance, he says, is to be placed on the present positions of the buoys. Repairs will be made as soon as ossible, but the damage is so extensive buoys are again placed in position. Secretary Herbert has sent to Senator McPherson and Representative Amos J. Cumming letters from Hon. Thomas D. Several Boats Wrecked. SALISBURY, Oct. 16.—Captain Veasey, of the steamer Enoch Pratt, reports the gale of Friday night one of the most se-vere in his recollection as a scafaring man for thirty years. The steamer left Salisbury Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, but laid at Whitehaven until 10 o'clock and then proceeded to Deals Island, where she lay until 6 o'clock yesterday morning. Captain Veasey reports a boat sunk off Hoopers Island bar, Hoopers Straits, and supposed to be a sloop, as only one mast can be seen standing, with topsall set. At Deals Island six large schooners drag at Deals Island six large schoolers drag-ged anchor, and went out into the sound. One of them has not been heard from since and had a full crew on board. The other boats were found. A large bugeye, bottom up, came ashore at Deals Island yesterday morning, supposed to have come from across the sound. A big sloop yesterday morning, supposed to have come from across the sound. A big sloop dragged against the wharf at Wingate point and foundered near the wharf. Captain Veasey says the entire lower portion of Lakes district was under water, and it is thought a number of cattle and hogs

Norwegian Bark Lost.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Oct. 16,-The Norwegian bark Luther, Captain Steensen 800 tons, from North Sydney, C. The captain ran in as near as possible to get a pilot boat, but none was about. He anchored off the harbor, but the ter-rible sea running drove the ship on the focks with great force. The crew then hoisted out the long boat, but the tackle broke and two men were drowned.

Four others boarded the boat and rowed four others boarded the boat and rowed her into the harbor for assistance. They met a pilot boat, which proceeded to the wreck and got off the remaining eight men with extreme difficulty. The pilot boat was forced to throw out an anchor and drop down on the bark. One man jumped overboard and was rescued. It was necessary to repeat this eight times to save the crew. Not a vestige of the to save the crew. Not a vestige of the

MURDERED HIS BABY BOY. A Father's Crime While the Mother Was

SPINGFIELD, MASS., Oct. 15.-Haven F. Winn killed his two-year-old son this morning by cutting his threat with a razor, and then committed suicide in the same way. His wife obtained a decree for separate maintenance from the Probate Court Wednesday, and had been given the custody of their only child. She then went to live with her father. Since his wife left him Winn showed a determination to about determination to obtain possession of his child at any cost. He called frequently at the house and tried to induce his wife, by persuasion and threats, to live with by persuasion and threats, to live with him again. She positively refused to do so, and the refusal maddened Winn. He had been given permission by the court to see his child Sunday, and going to the house this morning with a razor, he was allowed to enter, and for several hours he carried the baby up and down in the sitting-room. His wife and her father meantime had driven to church.

STAND FIRM FOR REPEAL

RICHMOND, VA., TUESDAY OCTOBER 17, 1893.

IS THE WATCHWORD OF THE AD-MINISTRATION FORCES.

And They Will Listen to No Compromise. The Lodge Resolutions to Stop Debate and Force a Vote

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16 .- The proceedings of the Senate to-day were interesting. They opened with the action on a House joint resolution fixing the qualifications to vote and to hold office in the Cherokee Outlet, Oklahoma Territory, at the first municipal elections. The joint resolution was passed after an unsuccessful attempt by Mr. Peffer to engraft woman suffrage upon it. The attempt was sustained by only nine senators.

Union Pacific railroad re-The ceivership led to the introduc-tion of a bill & Mr. Morgan to provide for the control of the Union and Central Pacific railroads until their debts to the government are fully paid Most of the two hours assigned by the rules to morning business was taken up in a debate upon resolutions to amend the rules heretofore offered by Mr. Lodge They propose to prohibit the reading of prepared speeches, require the counting of senators who are present and refuse of senators who are present and refuse to vote for the purpose of making a quo-rum, and propose an arrangement similar to that now existing in the House, under which (through a report from the Com-mittee on Rules) debate may be stopped and a vote taken.

A Travesty of Helpiessness,

Mr. Lodge spoke of the Senate present-ing a travesty of helplessness, and said that it should either frankly abandon the whole thing or else go to work and amend the rules so as to give power to the mathe rules so as to give power to the majority.

Mr. Vest, in opposing the amendments, said that the effective and patriotic use of the rights of the minority in defeating the force bill a few years ago was worth an acre of argument. When senators, he said, came to the conclusion that there could be no unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, a compromise bill could be passed, which would be just to all sections and all classes. To a question by Mr. Hill why the pending bill could not be passed Mr. Vest replied that if the New York senator, after what he had witnessed during the last two months, could not answer the question satisfactorily to himself, it would be arrogant vanity for him (Vest) to try to do so. Mr. Aldrich also took part in the discussion, and he also took part in the discussion, and he and Mr. Hill were equally emphatic as to the power of the majority to pass the to the power of the majority to pass the repeal bill, even under existing laws. The Lodge resolutions went over till tomorrow, and the repeal bill was taken up at 1 P. M., Mr. Jones (Nev.) occupying three hours, but not finishing his speech, and Mr. Peffer (Kan.) going on with the speech which he began last Friday.

Motion to Adjourn, allowed to enter, and for several hours be carried the baby up and down in the sitting-room. His wife and her father meantime had driven to church.

Just before 12 o'clock Winn began to act so strangely that Mrs. Hecox, his mother-in-law, became frightened, and sent her son for assistance. He called a policeman, and on the way back met Mrs. Hecox, who told them that Winn had killed his child and himself. He had laid the baby on the bed, and severed the juguiar vein with one stroke of the razor, but the child had been able to crawl to the foot of the bed where he died. Winn had then gone into the sitting-room and standing in front of a looking-glass, had cut his throat, dying instantly.

Winn was about thirty years old, and was of a sullen and morose disposition. He was married four years ago, at liattle, the first market is the presence of a quorum, and senators had again to come in from the committee presence of a quorum, and senators had again to come in from the committee presence of a quorum, and senators had again to come in from the committee present and had not voted. But the presiding officer, Mr. Faulkner, overruled the point. Mr. Allen stated that if he could abstain from answering to his name under the rules of the Secata and thereby break the guorum. the Senate and thereby break the quorum the Senate and thereby break the quorum he proposed to do so.

At 6:40 Mr. Power suggested the absence of a quorum. The roll-call disclosed the presence of forty-two senators, one less than a quorum. Mr. Voorhees moved that the sergeant-at-arms be directed to request the presence of absences. Then two more senators came in, making one more than a quorum. Mr. Voorhees moved that further proceedings under the rule. more than a quorum. Mr. Voornees haven that further proceedings under the rule be dispensed with. Mr. Dubois asked for the yeas and nays, and one-fifth of the Senate having endorsed the demand, the lerk was directed to call the roll. cierk was directed to call the roll. On this question the ayes were 37 and the noes, 1. This disclosed the absence of a quorum, when at 6:57 o'clock the presid-ing officer directed the clerk to call the roll. Enough senators then emerged from the cloak rooms to make up the necessary 43. Immediately afterwards the clerk was directed to call the roll on Mr. Voorhees' otion, on which the vote was-ayes, 36;

Continual Ro" Calls,

No quorum having voted, Mr. Voor-hees again moved that the sergeant-atarms be directed to request the return of the absent senators, and to withdraw his motion that proceedings under the roll-call be dispensed with. He then went on with suppressed indignation and anger to say that if there was anything amusing in the present method of procedure he should dislike to interfere with the Senate's pleasure. If the rest of the senators found it comfortable to stay for the next three, four, five, or six hours in he could attempting to secure a quorum, he could also wait. And he further announced that if it was necessary to stay until the 4th of July next, in order to demonstrate the right of the majority of the Senate to rule in this body, he was determined to do so.

No quorum having voted, the clerk again, at 7:16 o'clock, was directed to call the roll. Forty-five senators were present when the roll was called on Mr. Voorhees motion, but, owing to the num-ber of pairs announced, there was not a voting quorum.

Mr. Voorhees then asked leave to withdraw his motion, but, unanimous consent being refused, the weary repeal leader sat down resignedly, and the occiliation between the roll-call showing the presence between the roll-call showing the presence of a quorum, and the call on Mr. Voorhees' motion showing no quorum, voting went on. About 8 o'clock the galleries had become pretty well filled and presented the same animated scene as on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. If the attendance in the galleries can be taken as an index of the popular feeling, it is evident that interest in the proceeding on the floor is as intense as when the sitting-out process was inaugurated.

Ing on the floor is as intense as when the sitting-out process was inaugurated.

On the floor of the Senate the presiding officer (Faulkner) was engaged in seeking a quorum, only to find that on a vote the number of senators who were restrained from voting by reason of pairs caused the quorum to disappear like chaff before the wind. Mr. Frye voiced the general feeling when he remarked, in a stage whisper, that the silver men had now got the Senate in such perfect working order that the roll-calls went on automatically.

automatically. At 8:30 o'clock, after nine roll-calls, At 8:30 o'clock, after nine foll-calls, forty-five senators voted, "aye" on Mr. Voorhees' motion that further proceedings under the rule be dispensed with, and there being none in the negative, the residing officer aurounced that a quorum had voted and the motion was carried.

Mr. Peffer was then recognized and said that it was such a long time since he had addressed the Senate (laughter) that he thought it necessary to present to the Senate the subject under discussion, when he was inerrupted. He was giving the history of the Senate and got to the time when the rules were adopted. These were nineteen in number; and Mr. Peffer then went on to read these rules in detail and debate upon

At 10 o'clock Mr. Peffer, without con-cluding his speech, yielded to Mr. Voor-hees, who moved that the Senate ad-journ. The motion was agreed to.

A Parl amen ary Tangle. The Senate got into a curious parlia mentary tangle just at nightfall, which recalled that extraordinary session when the body, with Ingalis in the chair, found itself unable to adjourn.

Mr. Cox (Tenn.) called up the bill for the better control of national banks. He explained the provisions of the bill, which he advocated, and which Mr. Cannon (III.) opposed.

Without disposing of the bill, the House, at 5 o'clock, adjourned.

Provisions of the McCreary Bill. WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16.—The McCreary Chinese bill, as it passed the House to-day, contains but two sections. The first is a repetition of section 1 of the existing exclusion act, except that it extends until six months after enactment the time allowing Chinese to register. It also amends the provision as to witness to the certificates so as to remove the inadvertant discrimination made against colored persons. Un der the bill any creditable person, other than Chinese, can be a witness, The section has an addition in the shape of a paragraph defining a merchant as a person beying and selling in his own name at a fixed place of busi-ness and performing no other manual labor than is incident to his business. Returning Chinese merchants are required to prove by two witnesses that they conducted business for at least a year without other man-ual labor before leaving the United ual labor before leaving the United States. Chinese under order of deportation are to be kept in the custody of a United States marshal and are not subject to bail. Certificates must contain photographs of their owners.

Chinese convicted of felony may not register, and such Chinese now subject to deportation shall be deported. The second section defines laborers to be persons engaged in both skilled and unskilled manual labor, such as mining, fishing, huckstering, peddling, laundering and curing fish. dering and curing fish.

Silver Men Fidbustering,

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 16.—The word sent along the line of the silver forces at 6 o'clock to-night was to flib-buster and to require an absolute quorum at all times. The silver men had been onferring during the afterno had been given out that Senator Voor-hees would request the Senate to sit into the night, and the information, whether correct or not, was added that he would take this course upon the direct request of the President, made through Secretary Carlisie. The purpose in filibustering was to show the futility of attempting further to force unusual hours. A visit was made to Secretary Carlisle by Senator Voorhees this morning. The two uation, Carlisle urged Voorhees to hold firm and keep his forces in line. expressed the opinion that by so doing it would be possible to secure the passage of the bill unamended, and suggested the advisability of continuing the night sessions. It was immediately after this sessions. It was immediately after this visit that Voorhees repaired to the Capitol and announced his intention of asking the Senate to sit until 10 o'clock at night. The attitude of the repeal forces in the Senate, as seen early this morning. was enough to convince the silver men that something had happened.

Repeal Advocates Determined. The advocates of repeal had not at the eginning of the session shown a more beginning of the session shown a more determined front than they displayed at the beginning of this the eleventh week of the term. This state of affairs was sufficient to overshadow the discussion of the prospect of compromise, and that subject took a back seat for the first time within two weeks. It is true, nevertheless, that the efforts at compromise were kept up in a desultory way, and that Mr. Cockrell, who has taken the lead as a compromiser, continued his work in that direction. The prospect at this time, as nearly as it can be analyzed. this time, as nearly as it can be analyzed, this time, as hearly as it can be analyzed, is that the present condition of affairs will continue for some days, and that a compromise will be again undertaken, and possibly by gathering up such support as it can get from all sources, will be put through. But there will probably be no more night sessions in the Senate be no more night sessions in the Senate while the repeal bill is pending. No More Night Sessions,

The silver senators would probably have continued indefinitely the parliamentary tangle that clogged proceedings for over two hours but for an understanding between the opposing forces to check filibus tering on a compromise from some of the leaders of the repeal side to attempt to so arrange matters as not to make other effort to secure night sessions. other effort to secure night sessions. This agreement, while it was not perfected, had the effect of causing the silver men to cease their calls for a quorum, and of permitting Mr. Peffer to continue his remarks without interruption from the call bell. If this arrangement is completed, as it now seems probable that it will be to-morrow, there will be no more night sessions. sessions. VERY GOOD RACING.

rrival of the Russian Fleet,

TOULON, Oct. 16.—The round of fetes begun almost upon the arrival of the Russian fleet at this port, is beginning to pall upon the residents of the city and upon the thousand of visitors from other parts of France. To-day the streets of the city are comparatively quiet and there is a marked absence of the wild enthusiasm that characterized the first coming of the Russian guests. In fact, the people are tired out and thousands of the visitors are leaving for their homes. There is a constant stream of railway trains leaving the city for every part of France, and all of them are filled to their utmost capacity. Many of the people leaving, however, would have liked to remain longer, but they have been called away by business or family matters. Though the novelty of the reception has, to a certain extent, worn off, there will be no lack of entertainment for the Russian officers. All the houses of the highest families in the city are open to them, and the most abundant hospitality, both public and private, is everywhere displayed.

There was a great crowd at the sta-tion and the heights above the town were occupied by cheering thousands.

TANGLE IN THE SENATE

CANNOT OBTAIN A DECISION OF THE GREAT QUESTION.

The Body Apparendy as Far From Action as They Were Weeks Ago... No Compremise on the Part of the Administration.

TIMES BUREAU, RAPLET BUILDING, | WASHINGTON, October 18, 1898.

The intricate tangle in the Senate is still as far from solution apparently as it was two weeks ago, and although about seventy senators were present this morning, and a majority of them in favor of an immediate vote, the absurd rules of that body make it just impossible to obtain a decision of the question which has now been debated for more than two months.

The situation is indeed a peculiar and unfortunate one. The silver men are primed for talk for many months to primed for talk for many months to come, and the "physical endurance test" has been demonstrated to be folly of the first water, and still the word comes from the Administration to "stand pat" and neither take nor talk compromise, and the entire matter as to the final outcome may be compared with the old interrogatory, "If an irresistible ball meets an immovable wall, what will be the consequences?"

No Compromise by the Administration.

It is said that Mr. Carlisle told a sentleman last night that no compromise would be accepted by the President which provided for the liberal coinage or purchase of silver, and if this be the case, there are only two things which seem to be likely to happen. One would be an adjournment of the Senate, and the other would come in the shape of a modification of the rules. The latter proposition has already been anticipated by resolutions introduced by Senator Hill, who is strongly in favor of such an action, and this morning received an impetus in the shape of a resolution by Senator Lodge, which provided that whenever a bill reported from a regular or special committee was under discussion, upon the written request of a majority of the Senate the Committee on Rules should report within five days It is said that Mr. Carlisle told a gen-

under discussion, upon the written request of a majority of the Senate the Committee on Rules should report within five days thereafter a resolution setting forth a time when a vote should be taken.

Senators Lodge and Hoar both spoke in favor of the resolution, the former referring, in the interests of limited debates, to the comprehensive and eloquent speech of Daniel Webster.

Senators Teller and Stewart both spoke briefly against the resolution, and gave notice of a desire to speak upon the subject, thus showing that they would transfer their eloquence from silver to any other subject that was directed in the interests of a vote in the Senate.

Senator Vest also jumped right into opposition, and reminded Messrs. Lodge and Hoar that Massachusetts was not sending Daniel Websters to the Senate now. This was the first Democratic break against the resolution by which a vote could be adopted, and would seem to indicate that all the Southern silver senators will oppose any effort whatever, to simplify the situation or secure
